In 2009, Linda Znachko unexpectedly had her life turned upside down after watching a news report about the tragic death of a young infant abandoned in a trash dumpster, the heartbreaking report made her resolve that she would do everything in her power to ensure no infant would ever again die without a name or a proper burial. Today, Linda works with coroners, funeral homes, and hospitals to give honor and dignity to unclaimed children and adults.

Znachko also partners with the organization “Safe Haven Baby Boxes” and has spent the last 11 years raising awareness and educating others about the Safe Haven Law and the Safe Haven Baby Box (SHBB) program, whose logo bears the footprint of baby Amelia, found deceased and abandoned at Eagle Creek Park (Indiana) in 2014. In 2025, Baby Haven was found deceased and abandoned in Brookside Park (Indiana). Baby Haven's legacy is the promotion of the Safe Haven Law in classrooms. Linda named, claimed, and laid both babies to rest.

She and her high school sweetheart, husband Steve, launched a Foundation, funding ministries around the globe. Steve and Linda attend Antioch Church in Indianapolis where they raised their 4 children. One of Linda’s greatest joys is being called “Honey” by her grandchildren.

Linda and Steve adopted their 5th child, Abigail, in 2020. Abigail lived 1 week in the NICU before going to heaven. Today, Linda works to give honor and dignity to every human life.
